
From access to independence

Two people can be equally keen to learn and have very different opportunities. AISA works to close that gap through access to tools, guided practice and the confidence to make your own decisions.

Access

Get connected

Even a free workshop is out of reach without a device or an internet connection. We're looking for venues, equipment and local support so more people can take part.

Learning

Practise with support

Our live Zoom workshops start with everyday tasks. You can watch a demonstration, try it privately and ask questions.

Independence

Make your own decisions

The aim is to repeat a task without help, check whether an answer is reliable and decide when to use AI and when to leave it aside.

Who takes priority? Individuals, self-employed people and small businesses with less time, equipment or support to learn. No technical background is needed.
